Loke	Buffed, embossed, coated. Hides are sanded to uniform thickness, then embossed to achieve uniform surface. Top coating adds protective layer. Completely uniform surface structure; no visible scars or other marks. RECOMENDED FOR: Restaurants, hotels, public spaces; homeowners who want easy maintenance.	A
Thor	Natural grain, semi-aniline, coated. Better hides are chosen. After aniline dyeing, a pigmentation coat is added to give perfect color uniformity. Top coating adds protective layer. Largely uniform surface structure; some visible scars or other marks. RECOMENDED FOR: Those looking for a good compromise between ease of maintenance and comfort	B
Odin	Full grain, semi-aniline, open finish. The next-best hides are chosen. After aniline dyeing, a pigmentation coat is added to give perfect color uniformity. A very light top coating that provides some protection and excellent touch. Natural surface structure; some visible scars or other marks. RECOMENDED FOR: Those looking for a good compromise between ease of maintenance and comfort. NOT RECOMMENDED FOR: High-traffic public areas.	C
Sif	Full grain, pure aniline, uncoated. Only the very best hides are chosen. The tanning and dyeing processes are one and the same. No final pigmentation treatment, so slight variations within hides and between hides may occur. Natural surface structure; few visible scars or other marks. RECOMENDED FOR: Those who want the natural leather look and who love the graceful ageing of the very best leather. Customers prepared to wait for the patina. NOT RECOMMENDED FOR: People expecting a uniform look or High-traffic public areas.	D
